Protection Your Loved Ones Can Count On

Life insurance is an important part of creating a secure financial future — and, with Armed Forces Mutual, you purchase more than just a policy — you secure your legacy to provide for your family after you're gone. Final Expense+ protects your survivors from having to pay your final expenses, outstanding debts, or medical bills out of pocket — you won't leave behind financial challenges for them to deal with on their own.

Government and Military Benefits Only Go So Far

You may think your family will receive the resources they need from the benefits and entitlements you've earned through your service, but that's not the full picture of what life without you will look like.

When you're gone, your survivors will face:

- Military benefits and entitlements, including Military Retired Pay, Social Security, and VA Disability benefits stop at your death.
- Survivor Benefit Plans, if elected, can take up to 90 days to establish.

- VA burial allowance is only available to survivors of Veterans with a rating of 10% or more and are payable at the rate of $978 for a non-service-connected death, up to $2,000 for a service-connected death. An additional $978 plot allowance for burials is available for non-VA national cemeteries.
- Bank accounts may be frozen or inaccessible immediately after your passing, and your Social Security death benefit is only $255.
