Government and Military Benefits Only Go So Far

You may think your family will receive the resources they need from the benefits and entitlements you've earned through your service, but that's not the full picture of what life without you will look like.

When you're gone, your survivors will face:

- Military benefits and entitlements, including Military Retired Pay, Social Security, and VA Disability benefits stop at your death.
- Survivor Benefit Plans, if elected, can take up to 90 days to establish.

- VA burial allowance is only available to survivors of Veterans with a rating of 10% or more and are payable at the rate of $978 for a non-service-connected death, up to $2,000 for a service-connected death. An additional $978 plot allowance for burials is available for non-VA national cemeteries.
- Bank accounts may be frozen or inaccessible immediately after your passing, and your Social Security death benefit is only $255.
